

Allah's Throne Was On The Water

The Quran says that God made every living thing from water (21:30). It also says that Allah's throne was on the water (11:7).

Modern science now confirms that all life evolved out of water. Every human being still goes through a water-breathing stage while in the womb. Only later in the gestation period do the gills disappear and oxygen-breathing lungs develop.

But the Quran, like other scriptures, uses physical phenomena to represent non-physical phenomena. The visible is used to represent the invisible.

The Bible says that when God breathed into man the breath of life, man became a living soul.

"Living," in the sacred language, refers to divine life. Divine men and women are "created from water."

The Two Roads

There are two basic approaches to spiritual cultivation, energy and consciousness. The energy approach seeks to awaken the kundalini force and the consciousness approach incorporates elements of the other.

The Consciousness Approach

Water symbolizes attainment of the state of trance in the consciousness approach.

When the meditator falls into trance he feels as though he is being submerged under water. He may feel like he is floating.

Trance is the very first step toward achieving godhead in the consciousness approach. Trance gives access to the subconscious where the power to effect inner change exists.

That divinity lies sleeping in the deep conscious was depicted as Ausar (Osiris) laying at the bottom of the Nile River in Egypt. That also meant that to access the god part in man one has to go into trance (Nile river).

Every initiate who achieved God-realization had to go through trance (“water”).

The goal of all spiritual cultivation is to shift one’s identity from the lower self (personality) to the higher self or divinity.

In astrology, the personality is indicated by the Moon and Rising Sign. The individuality is indicated by the Sun. The divinity, however, though not discussed by modern astrologers, is indicated by Pluto. These represent spheres 9 (Moon), 6 (Sun) and 1 (Pluto) in the Tree of Life system.

Astrology works to cultivate individuality. However individuality’s main function is to lead the way to divinity. “I am the way, the truth and the life.”

But without the divinity component, individuality cannot reach its full potential.

Pluto shows where the psychic pollution, past life complexes, pornographic desires, power hunger, undercover neuroses and secret passions lie.

Its principle is transformation, regeneration or annihilation.

Pluto shows where the funk is, but also the area of life which, if transmuted, will open the way for God-realization.

A person (like Michael Jackson) with a first house Pluto will have deep self-esteem issues. Wrestling with Pluto’s energies such a person will change his or her appearance drastically. They will have extremely powerful sex drives which they will try to keep hidden since they are ashamed of their inability to control them. They may lead secret “night lives” that are completely at odds with their prim and proper public persona.

Real work, far beyond current Western psychology, could help the person transform his or her Plutonian instincts and find his/her opening to divinity via that process.

A second house Pluto brings the regenerative work into the 2nd house. The other house placements of Pluto are: 3rd, communications, mental issues; 4th, parental issues; 5th, sexual issues and children issues; 6th, employment, animals, sickness issues; 7th, marital issues; 8th, sex, death, issues; 9th, religion, travel, education issues; 10th, parental career success issues; 11th, friendship issues; 12th, confinement, subconscious issues.

Pluto indicates one's many past lives. When one achieves Plutonian consciousness, she identifies with herself as a being who has lived many lives, has been male and female, Black, White, Asian and who is "ever-living" and can never truly die.

That is the meaning of "thou shall not kill." It actually means "thou canst not kill" because the real being is not the perishable body, but the imperishable soul.

How can you disbelieve in Allah and you were dead, then He revived you, then He kills you, then He revives you. Then you will return to Him.

-- Quran 2:28

The Quran says "Adam forgot" which means that the Atman (the Ba or God-in-man) incarnates into the physical realm and soon forgets it is God. Eventually it falls into "the worst part of life so that it knows nothing after having known much" (22:5).

Consciousness trapped in the material gross body is the worst part of life.

The object of spiritual cultivation, then, is to awaken ("resurrect") the dead or Sleeping Adam (Atman) and to identify with It (God), not our complex of emotions (personality) and physical characteristics.

The Energy Approach

Kundalini is the awesome force that is the very life force of the universe.

The energy-initiate seeks to awaken the Kundalini force and raise it to his brain where it will stimulate his pineal and pituitary glands, causing them to secrete hormonal fluids which preserve ("embalm") the body, expand consciousness and generate an energy and spirit body to travel to the higher planes.

"Water," in the Ra/Kundalini approach represents sexual fluids. For Kundalini to awaken, rise and be transmuted to divine energy (Sakiynat), sexual fluids must be retained.

The Quran says Allah created man (i.e., divine man) from "a fluid despised" and "from mixed semen."

The Ba or Ausar (God-man) is developed from semen retention and sexual force cultivation in the energy approach.

Kula (tantric) yoga focuses on cultivating sexual energy for use in igniting the Kundalini serpentine fire.

When the Kundalini force stimulates the glands to secrete hormones that is the spiritual counterpart of the physical anointing that signifies becoming a messiah or Christ (anointed one).

Creating every living thing from water, in the Ra/Kundalini approach, means that every full energy initiate mastered the retention and cultivation of the sexual fluids.

Although female initiates don't have to worry about fluid retention, the sex chakra is called the water gate and they have to also master sexual practices, primarily aimed at reducing menstruation.

I want to take you Higher

The world's religions are being held hostage in Sunday school. I'm trying to break them out.

The scriptures are multidimensional, multi-layered texts that can guide and nourish us from one plane to the next.

In the ancient Egyptian texts the creator God states: "I established maa." In Kamitic (ancient Egyptian) maa means law. The neteru stand upon maa and they eat maat (apotheosis of divine law).

The Arabic word for water is also maa. On a higher level of understanding it also means divine law.

Many Egyptian technical-spiritual words are in the Quran. The influence of the Egyptians was global.

Every living thing (divine man or woman) is created from Maat, i.e., the divine law of interdependence and interrelatedness.

What is God's Throne?

There are two grades of throne. The lower throne (Yesod, Kunsiy) represents mastery of meditation and mediumistic trance.

This is under the auspices of Isis and the Moon, ruler over rivers, lakes and bodies of water.

To achieve divinity (Allah) one has to first master the lower throne.

Auset (Isis) means “seat” and in many places in scripture, “to sit is code for meditation. The word Zen actually means “to sit.”

The higher throne is signified by the 3rd Tree of Life sphere whose order of angels, Araleem, means “thrones.”

This is signified by the Khepera power, i.e., the power to make transformations into any deity (archetype) you choose.

At that level the initiate gains access to God’s omnipotence.

God’s throne being on water signifies that achieving omnipotence depends upon mastery of trance and awakening the power of 50 little mothers or sounds units of power.

In the energy approach one refines kundalini force to Shechinah power.

The “water” (maa) of the lower throne is trance. The maa of the higher throne is divine law. In other words, before one can access the awesome Shekhem power (Shechinah), one must bring one’s life into complete accord with the law of Maat.

It is at that point that the initiate “dies” to the world. He no longer identifies himself as human. Instead he realizes himself as God.

Revelation calls such a one “he who was dead yet is now alive forever more. Amen.”
